HISTORY OF THE JACK BROOKS REGIONAL AIRPORT

Originally named Jefferson County airport, this facility has served area residents since the World War II era. Jefferson County Commissioners purchased land to build the airport in 1941, and its development, which included three runways, a taxiway system and apron facilities, began the following year, with initial construction completed in early 1944. Eastern Airlines conducted the first scheduled flight in March of that year. During the War, the airport also served U.S. Marine Air Corps Dive Bomber Squadron No. 931 as a base for advanced training. Pilot trainees used floating targets in the Gulf of Mexico off Sabine Pass for gunnery and dive-bombing practice.

The airport has accommodated developments in air technology through enhancement of its facilities. Improvements in the 1950s and 1960s included additional land, buildings and taxiways, and installation of runway lighting and an instrument landing system. In the early 1980s, when Texas International, Southwest Airlines, Air Texana and Metro Airlines all operated out of the airport, additional improvements were made, including completion of a new terminal. In 2010, County Commissioners approved a name change for the facility to the Jack Brooks Regional Airport.

As chemical and petrochemical industries, paper and pulp manufacturing and other area businesses grew, the airport became an increasingly important transportation center. In 2005, it was the site of one of the largest civilian airlifts in U.S. History, when the U.S. Military evacuated thousands of local residents with special medical needs during landfall of Hurricane Rita. Today, the airport continues to play a vital economic role in Southeast Texas.

TEXAS HISTORICAL COMMISSION AWARDS JEFFERSON COUNTY A ROUND VIII EMERGENCY GRANT THROUGH ITS TEXAS HISTORIC COURTHOUSE PRESERVATION PROGRAM

DATE: April 30, 2014

(Beaumont, Texas)—The Texas Historical Commission (THC) recently announced that Jefferson County will receive a $450,000 emergency grant award through its nationally recognized Texas Historic Courthouse Preservation Program. Commissioners awarded matching grants totaling more than $5 million to 18 Texas communities to help preserve their historic courthouses. The announcement was made at the THC’s quarterly meeting in Fort Worth on April 30.

The communities to receive funds in Round VIII of the program are: Callahan, Dickens, Dimmit, Houston, Hunt, Jefferson, Karnes, Lamar, Lee, Limestone, Lipscomb, Lynn, Polk, Rains, San Saba, Upshur, Wilson and the city of Hidalgo.

The THC requested $20 million for the Round VIII grant cycle, but was appropriated $4.2 million by the 83rd Texas Legislature. While the significant reduction is a temporary setback for the 78 counties that currently qualify for additional funding, Round VIII emergency grants will address serious building deficiencies affecting usability, structural problems, and safety issues in historic (more than 50 years old) county courthouses.

The Jefferson County Courthouse, a Moderne style building was constructed in 1931 to the designs of the architectural firm of Stone and Babin. The building served as the center of county government throughout the 20th century. This is Jefferson County’s first grant through the THC’s Texas Historic Courthouse Preservation Program. The project will address deficiencies in the fire alarm system at the courthouse. This new system will expand coverage throughout all levels of the building and greatly enhance its reliability and reparability, improving safety for the building and its occupants.

The grant application was supported by the Southeast Texas Regional Planning Commission, the Jefferson County Commissioner’s Court, the City of Beaumont, the City of Nederland, and the City of Port Neches. Jefferson County will receive $450,000 in state funding toward a project estimated to total almost $1 million. The county selected Bailey Architects of Houston as the project architect.

Future work being considered for the courthouse will focus on the restoration of the historic building, including the installation of modern plumbing, mechanical, electrical and data/communications systems. Jefferson County will remain responsible for the continued care and stewardship of this valuable historic building.

TEXAS HISTORICAL COMMISSION AWARDS JEFFERSON COUNTY A ROUND VIII EMERGENCY GRANT THROUGH ITS TEXAS HISTORIC COURTHOUSE PRESERVATION PROGRAM CONTINUED

A total of 24 grant applications totaling more than $18 million in project costs were submitted in Round VIII. Pending additional funding from the Texas Legislature, the THC anticipates continuing the highly successful program with additional rounds of grant opportunities.

“The goal of this program is to assist as many communities as possible,” said THC Architecture Division Director Sharon Fleming. “Applicants receiving grants this round are in imminent danger of experiencing a catastrophic event, such as a fire, electrical hazard, or structural mishap that could cause injury or further endanger the building to the point where it is unusable. The Texas Historic Courthouse Preservation Program strives to not only preserve our historic courthouses, but make them functioning, safe, and up-to-date facilities.”

In 1998, Texas’ courthouses appeared on the National Trust for Historic Preservation’s list of America’s Most Endangered Historic Places. As a result, the Texas Legislature established the Texas Historic Courthouse Preservation Program, and appropriated funding to preserve and protect them.

In the previous seven rounds of the program, the State of Texas has allocated $247 million, and counties have provided local matches of approximately $174 million, to fully restore more than 60 of the state’s historic county courthouses. The result of the successful partnership has been the creation of more than 10,000 jobs and more than $21 million generated in local taxes.

The Texas Historic Courthouse Preservation Program’s accomplishments have garnered national and international attention, with honors from the National Trust for Historic Preservation, the Association for Preservation Technology, the Texas Society of Architects, and the Society of Architectural Historians. In 2008, the program was recognized with a Presidential Award from the White House. The innovative program has also partnered with the Texas Land Title Association for the past seven years to offer a series of stewardship workshops that provide training to ensure the restored structures are maintained, preserved, and do not fall back into disrepair.

For more information, contact the THC’s Architecture Division at 512.463.6094 or visit www.thc.state.tx.us.

The Texas Historic Courthouse Preservation Program was established in 1999 by Gov. George W. Bush and the Texas Legislature to restore Texas’ county courthouses to their original splendor and make them safe, functional, and a source of pride for Texas communities. The Texas Historical Commission administers the $247 million program.

McFaddin Ward House

The McFaddins collected a lot over their years spent in the house, including many pieces destined for the two dining areas of the home. If you've visited the museum, you've seen examples of these lavish tablescapes, often set with exquisite pieces of china, silver, cut glass, and others. A new exhibit at the McFaddin-Ward House Museum's Visitor Center is showcasing a few items that brought color and playfulness to these elegant table settings.
